

September 21-23, 2016
Bethesda Marriott, Maryland

Registration is Now Open for the Animal Biotech Summit

Over the two-and-a-half day conference, industry, not-for-profit, and government thought leaders* will provide broad overviews on topics pertaining to animal health and welfare, diagnostics, biotherapeutics, vaccines, food safety and security, agricultural sustainability, and environmental applications of biotechnology.

There is no better opportunity to learn why and how the One Health approach and biotechnology-based solutions are required for addressing some of the greatest threats to human and animal health. Topics to be discussed include the impact of biotechnology on:

Animal Health and Welfare
Emerging and Re-emerging Infectious Diseases
Poverty Reduction and Food Security
Biodiversity and Species Conservation
